GRANTS & FUNDING SOURCES AVAILABLE TO MUSEUMS & GALLERIES IN 2009

This is a summary of grants and funding sources available to museums and galleries in NSW for 2009. Whilst every attempt has been made to make it as comprehensive as possible, this document should be used in conjunction with other lists of funding sources available.

- The Australia Council for the Art's Arts Funding Guide can be accessed on their website at: www.australiacouncil.gov.au. The Council also produces numerous free publications, including the Arts Funding Guide 2009, which can be obtained by contacting the Council, tel: (02) 9215 9000, toll free: 1800 226 912, email: mail@australiacouncil.gov.au. In addition the Council produces a monthly Arts Bulletin, which lists arts and cultural events scheduled in New South Wales along with upcoming grants.
- Regional Arts NSW produce a Guide to Writing Grant Applications to assist not-for-profit community based organisations in preparing submissions. The guide can be downloaded from their website at www.regionalartsnsw.com.au. Further details of RANSW administered grants and funding can also be obtained from their website or by contacting Annette Eassie, Funding Manager, tel: 02 9270 2502 or Ben Sibson, Funding Officer Tel: 02 9270 2501 or email: funding@regionalartsnsw.com.au
- The National Association for the Visual Arts (NAVA) produces a book called Money for Visual Artists (9th Edition released in April 2008) for $25 members, $35 non-members, and also offers a number of grants and scholarships. For more information contact NAVA at tel: (02) 9368 1900, email: nava@visualarts.net.au, or check their website: www.visualarts.net.au.
- Western Sydney Information and Research Service (WESTIR Ltd) also provides advice on applying for grants and funding. For more information please contact WESTIR Ltd, tel: (02) 9635 7764, email: westir@pnc.com.au or check their website: www.westir.org.au
- Philanthropy Australia Inc runs a number of workshops for grant seekers and grant makers, and provides information about grants and other funding sources from non-government sources. The organisation also produces publications such as The Australian Directory of Philanthropy available for $65.00 (printed version) or $75 (online annual subscription) and A Grant Seeker's Guide for $32.75. Further details can be obtained via their website: www.philanthropy.org.au tel: 9620 0200, or email: info@philanthropy.org.au.

- Many local government authorities have heritage and community grants and/or loan schemes. Council Heritage Advisers can be consulted regarding a range of heritage and fund-raising opportunities. The NSW Heritage Office provides information on funding for heritage projects, including direct funding from the NSW Heritage Office as well as heritage assistance through other sources. Further information can be obtained from their website at www.heritage.nsw.gov.au. They also distribute brochures such as How to Establish a Local Heritage Fund. You can request a free copy of these publications by telephoning (02) 9873 8500 or alternatively you can download a copy from their website.
- Chapel & York Grants & Resources is a free service for charities and non-profit organisations anywhere in the world. Uniquely, every item is relevant in more than one country, many relevant worldwide. They review information on grants and funding everyday to find new opportunities. Ph: +44 1342 871910, Email: info@chapel-york.com, www.chapel-york.com. Address: Chapel & York Limited, The Courtyard, Ladycross Business Park, Hollow Lane, Lingfield, RH7 6PB, United Kingdom.

TIPS FOR SUCCESSFUL GRANT APPLICATIONS

Is it the right grant?

Applying for grants takes a lot of time and energy. Before you embark on an application, read through the guidelines and talk to someone in the funding organisation to make sure the grant you're applying for is appropriate for your project. The funding organisation may be able to identify a more appropriate grant.

What are they looking for?

Find out what you can not only about the grant but the funding organisation as well. Look at the organisation's website, printed material they put out and talk to them on the phone. What are their key objectives, mission statement or future strategies? It is important that you can identify how your project will fulfill these objectives.

Is your pitch right- what's going to sell your project?

Get together as a group and brainstorm the important factors of your project to sell it to someone with little knowledge of it or your organisation. How will it stand out from the crowd, what's so special about your project, why should it be funded over many others?

Be succinct- sell it in the first line

More often than not, the funding organisation will receive many more applications than they have money to give out. You need to attract their attention in the first line of the application. It is also important to get your message across clearly with as few words as possible. It needs to be quick and easy for the grant body to understand what you need and why you need it.

Who is going to manage the project?

You need to be clear about how the project is to be managed from the outset. Not only will this make the grant body more confident in your organisation's management ability but it will make the internal management of the project much smoother.

What credibility do you have?

Many grant applications have a number of questions about constitutions, annual reports, previous or current grants. These questions help the funding body to understand how you operate and have confidence that you will be able to manage the project successfully.

Can you collaborate?

Funding bodies want to see their funds spread as far as possible. If you can show that through collaboration/partnership the funding will be able to assist several organisations, this is generally very well received.
